FOURTH VICTIM IS CLAIMED BY "LOONY GAS" IN NEW JERSEY

New York.—The death toll from the "loony gas" poisoning of workers in the research laboratory of the Bayway, N. J. plant of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, was increased to four by the death Wednesday of William Kresge, 29 years old, of Elizabeth, N. J., in the Reconstruction hospital.

Before his death Kresge became so violent that he had to be placed in a straight jacket. The other victims of the gas who died were similarly affected.

Herbert Fuson, also of Elizabeth, is in a critical condition at the hospital. He also has been placed in a straight jacket. Fifteen other employees are in the same hospital in varying stages of ailment produced by the gas.

PUBLIC HEALTH IS SUBJECT OF TALK TO STATE NURSES

Number of Addresses by Noted
Authorities on Convention
Program

By Associated Press
Milwaukee.—Public health and private duty sections were given the convention floor Wednesday in the annual meeting of the Wisconsin State Nurses association here. The morning hour was given to the health section with Clara Lewis presiding. The principal addresses were by Mrs. A. H. Wilkinson, chairman of the section on public health, Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs, and by Dr. Don M. Griswold, acting head of the department of hygiene and preventive medicine, University of Iowa.

The subject of Mrs. Wilkinson's address was "what membership in the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs means to nurses."

She set forth the mutual advantages that might be gained by club women and nurses in the event of larger affiliation by nurses in the clubs. Discussion was led by Cecelia Evans, affiliated with the state board of health, Madison.

Prevention of communicable diseases in schools was described by Dr. Griswold, with a discussion by Agnes J. Martin, superintendent of nurses, Milwaukee Health department.

At noon, luncheon in honor of pioneers in nursing in Wisconsin was enjoyed. Following this the private duty section met for a discussion by Kora Johnson, La Crosse, who reported Detroit convention sessions relative to its work in private and the round table discussion had there on registration.

Late Wednesday Dr. A. B. Schwartz, Milwaukee, will address the section on "the use of complementary food moisture in infancy," and Dr. Ewald Wetzel, Milwaukee, will talk on the subject of oral hygiene.

The convention closes Thursday with a business session and a meeting of the State League of Nursing Education.

EXPECT AGREEMENT ON TURKISH LINE

By Associated Press
Brussels.—A complete settlement of the controversy between Great Britain and Turkey over the status quo of the frontier between Turkey and Mosul would be reached at the afternoon session Wednesday of the council of the league of nations, in special session here, it is expected by league officials.

This opinion, it was explained by the officials, was based upon belief that the settlement of the controversy worked out by Dr. Hjalmar Branting, the Swedish premier, would fix a frontier line acceptable both to Great Britain and Turkey, pending settlement of the larger problem of sovereignty over Mosul.

Albert M. Guani, Uruguayan minister to Belgium, and Count Quinones de Leon, Spanish ambassador to France, played important roles in effecting the settlement concerning activity with Dr. Branting in inducing the British and Turks to accept.

Convict Claiming to Be Urban John Bergeron Admits His Fraud

PARENTS BACK IN MENASHA

Sister of Dead Soldier Makes Further Attempt to Un- ravel Plot

By Associated Press
Atlanta, Ga.—Stripped of the romantic possibility that he was a long lost son, mourned as fallen hero of the World War, Robert E. St. Claire Wednesday again faces the sordid monotony of life in the federal prison here. Tuesday night he signed a statement in which he repudiated his claims that he is in reality Urban John Bergeron of Menasha, Wis., a story printed Wednesday in the Atlanta Constitution says.

The statement published by the Constitution comes as the climax of several weeks of claims and counter-claims in which the move of a mother and the faith of a father have been pitted against the cold records of the war department and the dogged persistence of a sister who declared she was determined her parents should not be duped. In the conference quoted by the Constitution, St. Claire, who is serving an 18-month sentence for transportation of an auto from one state to another, says he was prompted to impersonate Bergeron by the yearning for love and care of a father and mother which he says he has never known. Mrs. Bergeron in her home at Menasha, Wis., received a letter from New Orleans which led her to the federal prison in Atlanta and she immediately declared the prisoner to be her son. Shortly afterward she was joined by her husband who supported his wife in her contention.

DAUGHTER LIFTS MASK
About two weeks ago her daughter, Mrs. Stella Emmerich, came to Atlanta where her mother had been making daily visits to the federal prison and set about tearing the mask from St. Claire, which she said he was wearing. Once the question was raised, officials at the prison asked the war department to compare the fingerprints of St. Claire with those on record in Washington as being Bergeron's. Shortly the answer came that they did not coincide. Since then the official record of the case has been closed. The task has been to bring about confession and to convince the parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Bergeron have returned to their home in Wisconsin where copies of the statement will be sent them.

Mrs. Emmerich will leave Atlanta Friday for her home in Milwaukee, and then visit her parents in Menasha, Wis. After that she is quoted in the Constitution as saying she will go to New Orleans where she will conduct an investigation into the motives of the woman who is said to have written the letter which started the strange case.

BOB MAKES FINAL NEW YORK ADDRESS

LaFollette Attacks Wall Street Tuesday Night in Gotham Speech

By Associated Press
New York.—Robert M. LaFollette, Independent presidential candidate, Wednesday night will deliver in Schenectady, N. Y., his final campaign speech in this state. He then turns into the home state of President Coolidge for an address Thursday night in Boston.

After his Boston speech he will invade Pennsylvania again for a Friday night speech in Pittsburgh. On Saturday night he will bring his campaign to a close with a speech in the Cleveland public hall, scene of the Republican national convention in June and of the meeting later of his supporters.

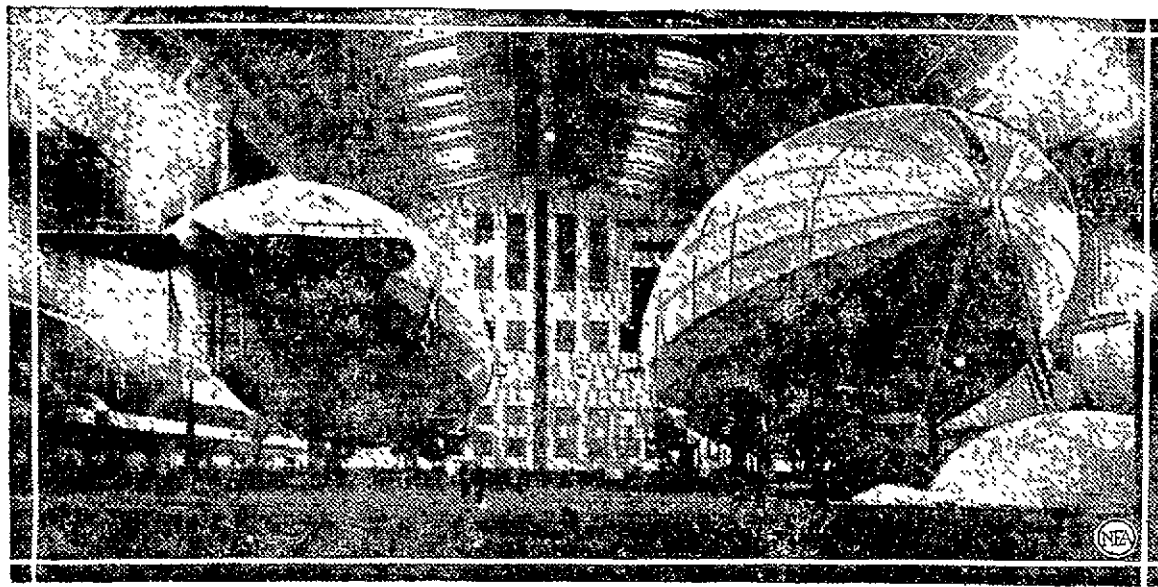

Speaking Tuesday night just across the river from the financial district of New York, Mr. LaFollette assailed Wall Street, particularly J. P. Morgan and Co. and the Standard Oil Co. Time again his audience applauded and cheered.

DAVIS SEEKS EQUALITY FOR FARMING INDUSTRY

By Associated Press
New York.—In his second statement outlining his issues, John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for president, declared Wednesday that unrest on the part of the nation's farmers will continue until their voice is listened to at the White House and in congress with the same attention given to the voice of the banker and industrialist.

The policy of the Democratic party, Mr. Davis said, "is to readjust the balance and to put agriculture where it belongs—on an equality with industry."

FARM-CITY DINNER IS TRANSFERRED TO EAGLE CLUBHOUSE

Mixup in Dates for Halls Causes Change—All Must Get Tickets Beforehand

Eagle hall on Washington-st will be used for the annual get-together dinner of business men of city and farm Monday evening, Nov. 3, instead of Elk hall. The change was necessary when it was found that the American legion's regular meeting night at Elk hall fell on the same date as that of the dinner.

Each farmer or member of his family who comes to the dinner must present a ticket which will be mailed to him as soon as he reserves plates through the chamber of commerce office. This step was taken by the arrangements committee so there would be no disappointment for those who made reservations, as occurred last year.

Farmers therefore are asked to notify the chamber of commerce by Friday if possible, giving names of persons who will attend. This will give the chamber time to mail the tickets so they will be received before Monday night. Reservations may be sent by mail or telephoned to No. 2701. The last date on which plates can be reserved is Saturday, because the requests are coming so fast no arrangements can be made after that time.

It is believed that the attendance will be sufficient to tax Eagle hall to capacity and those who are the first to submit their names are the ones who will be accommodated. Appleton businessmen are being urged to attend so as to meet their neighbors of the surrounding community.

The speakers will be Burt Williams, Milwaukee, whose subject is Tying City and Country Together, and John Seaman Gurnea, humorist.

FOREST GUARDS PUT OUT FIRES

All but One of Numerous Con- flagrations Now Under Control

By Associated Press
Laona.—All but one of the numerous brush and forest fires which have been threatening the timber belt in the eastern part of Forest-co since Saturday were under control Wednesday, according to W. P. Lawson, state fire warden in charge of fire fighting activities here. The only fire not in hand is located near Blackwell, close to the Forest-Marquette-co line.

Although the fires have swept over a large area, the warden declared that the actual damage to standing timber would not be very large, for he said, because of the heavy rains this summer the fire did not get to the roots of the trees.

The heaviest damage was caused in the slashed timber areas where huge piles of brush fed the flames, he said. Fire patrols have been stationed throughout the affected area, and warning signals have been placed to spread the alarm in case of any further outbreak, which, according to the warden, is not expected, for a mild west wind is blowing Wednesday.

LUTHERANS BELIEVE ADVERTISING PAYS

Chicago.—Publicity and women's work were before the convention sessions Wednesday of the United Lutheran church in America.

"Churches should avail themselves of every opportunity to reach the public through newspaper publicity or advertising," declared the report of the committee on publicity. "The Lutheran churches have found publicity and advertising proper aids in prosecuting their work nationally and locally, and the public press has come to attach a growing value to church activities as news for their leaders. Paid advertising has become invaluable to a considerable number of local churches, the report stated."

BOMB WRECKS MAYOR'S HOUSE IN KLAN FIGHT

By Associated Press
Niles, O.—Explosion of a bomb early Wednesday wrecked the front of the home of Mayor H. L. Kistler. Although the mayor and his family were sleeping upstairs, they were not injured.

A controversy regarding the right of the Ku Klux Klan to stage a parade here on Saturday afternoon had been waging for several days. Officials of the Knights of the Flaming Circle also applied for permission to parade at the same time but their request was denied by the mayor who declared that Klan officials applied first.

Flaming Circle officials have announced they will parade without a permit. Mayor Kistler has appealed to surrounding cities to aid police in an effort to prevent possible disorders.

COOLIDGES HOSTS TO ADVERTISERS

President Has No Plans for Further Active Part in Campaigning

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C.—President and Mrs. Coolidge were hosts at a breakfast party Wednesday morning to representatives of the advertising business and members of a Republican association, composed of advertisers. Most of the party came here from New York for the early morning engagement.

The president has no further plans for active participation in the campaign and it was said at the White House Tuesday that general confidence is felt there on the outcome of the election on the basis of all reports so far received from various sections of the country.

Mr. Coolidge has not reached a definite decision on the manner in which he will vote, though indicating to friends he probably will cast his ballots by mail instead of going to Northampton, Mass.

DEAN OF CHICAGO BANKERS PASSES

By Associated Press
Chicago.—While his lips formed the words of his favorite hymns sung by his pastor and members of his family, James Berwick Forgan, noted financier and dean of Chicago bankers, died Tuesday night of heart disease in a hospital here.

Two hours before his death the 72-year-old banker, chairman of the board of the First National and the First Trust and Savings banks, sent for his family and the Rev. John Timothy Stone of the Fourth Presbyterian church, of which he was a regular attendant. With them he recited passages of scripture and joined in singing hymns as his life ebbed away.

He had been ill only five days.

EVANSTON CLUB BARS ZONA GALE'S ADDRESS

By Associated Press
Chicago.—Miss Zona Gale, novelist, scheduled to speak in favor of the LaFollette Independent candidacy before the Women's club of Evanston at the residence of Gen. Charles G. Dawes, Republican Vice Presidential nominee, was denied a hearing Tuesday by a majority of the members.

The vote was taken after the chairman called attention to a bylaw forbidding political speeches from the club rostrum.

Miss Gale spoke later at the home of her hostess.

Disappointment in Party Ticket Induces Voters to Side With Coolidge and LaFollette

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1924 by the Post Pub. Co.
Providence, R. I.—This is one of the states with which the Democrats have been in hopes they would break the hold of the Republican strength of the east. Here flourished the Al Smith sentiment and a militant Democracy. If the New York governor had been nominated it would have been a close race. As it is, Rhode Island can be regarded as safe for Coolidge, though perhaps by a smaller ratio than four years ago.

Industrial conditions have not been all that might be desired yet. Coolidge is ahead. Why? Because disaffected voters have placed their faith in the Democratic party through their uttering their protests. The third party vote in this state will be considerable and most of it will come from the ranks of the Democrats. The Klan has made its appearance here but both Republican and Democratic state conventions have adopted strong planks in denunciation of that order.

LACK ENTHUSIASM
John W. Davis is being given the organization support but he is not winning the same enthusiasm that the other candidates on the state and senatorial ticket seem to be getting. Davis probably will run behind them, although LaFollette will be third in Rhode Island.

The Democrats of Irish extraction are divided here as in Connecticut, with many of them alienated on account of Davis' stand in favor of the league of nations and others arguing that anyone who can be popular at the court of St. James cannot be sympathetic with the Irish. The organization leaders, of course, are not always in a position to sweep aside such notions, however ill-founded they may be.

But the cold fact is that Rhode Island Democrats had another idol in their minds for 1924 and when he was not nominated they felt unhappy over the substitute Fery of the Democratic candidates ever mention the name of Davis or the national ticket in their speeches except occasionally, and then in a casual way. They all most never refer to Charles W. Bryan. This is territory where the nomination of Bryan did as much as any one thing to drive the conservative Democrats into the arms of Coolidge Republicanism. The strategists of the Republican campaign, aided by a friendly press, have spread the idea that the election might get tied up in the house of representatives and that Bryan might be the choice for president. To avoid such a contingency, large numbers of Democrats are deserting their party this time.

ELECTORATE SCARED
Just why in Republican New England here Calvin Coolidge is so strong, there should develop the fact that the election is so close as to bring about a deadlock in the house of representatives is another incomprehensible thing, for usually when a candidate is strong in one section the people imagine he is equally strong in other sections. The only conclusion which seems warranted is that the Republican managers have done a good job of scaring the electorate in these parts, and they not only have retained the Republican vote but acquired much of the Democratic conservative strength. The vote for Coolidge this year will be a true index of the power of the conservatives for they have drawn from all sides to the one standard of "things as they are."

CHINESE USE GAS BOMBS IN NEW TONG WAR

New York Waiter Taken in Pos- session of Grenades Con- taining Poison

By Associated Press
Chicago.—The quiet which has prevailed among Chicago Chinese for over a week after an outburst of attacks and shootings was broken early Wednesday when a Chinese laundry was badly damaged in a bomb explosion. Two Chinese, asleep in the place, were uninjured.

A policeman in the vicinity saw two Chinese plant the bomb. He pursued them in an automobile which got abreast of the bomb as it exploded. The machine was damaged but he was uninjured. The two Chinese escaped.

New York.—The ancient feud of the tongz would have been renewed Wednesday with the most modern of war materials—gas bombs—except for a lucky Tuesday night police say. Two tear gas grenades were seized Tuesday night in a raid on a Chinese restaurant and Long Wong Chue, a waiter, was arrested on a charge of possessing them. The police said that Chue is a member of the Hip Sing tong. Chue was arrested after the police had received a tip to the effect that a mysterious small wooden box had been delivered to him by express.

According to the detectives, the box contained two grenades. J. A. Report, inspector of the bureau of combustibles, said that one of the grenades if placed in a small room and ignited or immersed in water, would kill every person in the room. He added that placed in a large hall under similar circumstances one of the grenades would render every person therein unconscious. Chue, according to the police, said he had ordered the bomb with a view of using them for use in the civil war now raging in China.

A federal grand jury Tuesday indicted three Chinese alleged to have aided in smuggling into this country seven other Chinese, supposedly for long fighting purposes.

RUSS RECOGNITION DEPENDS ON DEBTS

Text of French Note Issued Too Late for Publication Wed- nesday Morning

Paris.—The text of the notes restoring Franco-Russian relations were made public too late for publication in the morning papers. Principally owing to the difficulties encountered in transmitting the Russian reply from Moscow, Premier Herriot held back the text of the French note until the Russian communication could be issued with it.

The gist of the French document, however, was already known when the papers went to press and it was generally inferred that it would have not been sent unless it was certain that the soviet government would reply favorably.

Such comment as there is, expresses satisfaction that M. Herriot made reservations which show that real resumption of relations is entirely dependent upon the fulfillment of certain conditions, notably as regards debts.

The Franco-Russian conference at which the outstanding questions will be discussed is not likely to open before January. The delegations will comprise probably five members each with 25 experts and will be preceded over by M. DeMonzie and M. Rakovsky, respectively.

WOMEN OF BRITAIN POLL RECORD VOTE

London.—The women's vote, heavier than it had ever been before, according to reports received Wednesday afternoon at the headquarters of three political parties, was the feature Wednesday of the balloting in the British general election.

Official reports indicated that an 80 per cent poll might be expected in a majority of the constituencies.

The reports indicated that women were casting a greater number of votes than ever before, being especially active in the east and south London working class districts.

The party leaders admitted that the women's vote, which had been an entirely unknown quantity, was the feature of the day, adding greatly to the uncertainty as to the final outcome.

Iowa Yields Last Homage To Wallace

By Associated Press

Des Moines, Ia.—The State of Iowa paid final homage to her illustrious son, the late Secretary Henry Wallace. Throughout the night and early Wednesday in the rotunda of the state capitol building a military guard watched over the casket which held the body of the secretary. Wednesday morning a silent, reverent crowd filed past to pay its final respects to the dead.

Heaped high about the casket placed upon a catafalque within the rotunda of the capitol building were the representatives of the state and nation including that of President and Mrs. Coolidge. Mrs. Wallace and her two daughters, and three sons, John P. Wallace, brother of the secretary of the interior, Howard S. Gore, acting secretary of agriculture, and others who made up the funeral party which accompanied the body from Washington, went directly to the Wallace home here. Secretary Work who was President Coolidge's personal representative at the funeral Wednesday was one of the honorary pall bearers.

CHURCH WRANGLE AWAITS ACTION BY PRESBYTERY

Charges Against Madison Pas- tor Are Kept Secret in Modernist Case

By Associated Press
Madison.—Until the Madison presbytery of the Presbyterian church meets here next Monday to consider charges preferred against Dr. George E. Hunt, pastor of Christ church, the exact nature of the dispute and charges involving modernist and fundamentalist beliefs will not be known.

Efforts Wednesday to obtain copies of the charges from those who filed them, were unavailing. Members declared the charges would be placed before the presbytery in detail when it meets and that until then the nature of the claims would be withheld.

Under Presbyterian rules according to officials ten days must elapse before the accused is brought to trial in the discretion of the presbytery. It also is stated Mr. Hunt may require three months to prepare his defense. George Langley, a Christian, has been retained by Dr. Hunt to represent him in the case.

A letter credited to Mr. Hunt and published in newspapers was responsible for the charges. The letter declared that the Westminster confession of faith was written more than 30 years ago and that "today's world is more about God's world and the past of the earth than those men did that naturally their outlook and expression is antiquated." It is further said that Dr. Henry Emerson Fosdick, New York, in whose behalf the letter was written had been "elbowed" out of the church and that he had been the object of attacks by "reactionaries in theology."

The Rev. C. L. Richards, Belleville, the Rev. I. S. Caldwell, Madison, and the Rev. J. A. Hutchinson, Potosi, preferred the charges. The Madison presbytery includes ten southern Wisconsin counties and twenty-five pastors.

Senate Committee Switches to Probe of Actors' Visit to White House

ACTORS OFFERED BOB HELP

Witness Claims Massachusetts Setts Union Barred LaFol- lette Men

Washington, D. C.—While bankers and captains of industry waited in the wings for further questioning, the senate campaign fund investigating committee Wednesday switched its spotlight on the delegation of actors who recently called at the White House and breakfasted with President Coolidge.

Rhineland Waldo, former police commissioner of New York, testified that a Coolidge nonpartisan organization of which he is the head paid the expenses of the actors during the trip to Washington. Then from Gilson Gardner, a Washington newspaperman, the committee heard a suggestion that Republican money had been used also to secure the use of "lines" favorable to Coolidge in various vaudeville skits.

Gardner, a supporter of LaFollette, said that early in September, William Burch of Washington, representing the McCutcheon-Gerson syndicate, a subsidiary of the Shubert Theatrical corporation, called on him and offered to sell to the LaFollette organization for $50,000, a publicity proposition which would include lines worked into vaudeville programs favorable to the candidate.

"The young man told me that they would prefer to sell the scheme to LaFollette because they sympathized with his views," Gardner said, "and would be willing to sell it to LaFollette at a lower figure than to either of the old parties."

He said he declined Burch's offer saying "that is more money than LaFollette has."

"I judged they sold the proposition to the Republicans when I heard about the actors calling at the White House, including Al Jolson, John Drew and Charlotte Greenwood, who were mentioned in connection with the offer," Gardner said.

HIRE LABOR SPEAKERS

From the committee moved on to charges that an effort had been made to hire labor men to take the stump for Coolidge.

Henry L. Ramm, a railroad fire man of Lawrence, Mass., a LaFollette supporter, testified that H. T. Drew, a former supporter of LaFollette, had offered him eleven dollars a day and eleven dollars for expenses to support Coolidge and make speeches for him.

"Similar offers, Ramm declared had been made to other railroad men in Lawrence and one accepted it."

W. L. Bourland, counsel for the Republican national committee, drew from Ramm a statement that he had solicited funds from labor unions at Lawrence receiving $25 from the Farmers union and $25 from the Mill and Shoppers union. He said the contributions were made as union's and not as individuals.

"Is the grand lodge paying your transportation and time lost by your presence here?" Bourland asked. "Yes," he replied.

"Do you know of any men being dismissed from the union because of their support of Coolidge?"

"No, but I have heard of men being dismissed for supporting LaFollette."

"Where?"

"At the American Wooler Co., a Lawrence, Mass."

CLAIM INSURANCE FIRMS REFUSE TO PAY $6,867 LOSS

Wisconsin Distributing Co. Starts Action in Circuit Court Here

The first seven suits instituted by the Wisconsin Distributing company of Appleton against seven fire insurance companies were opened in circuit court before Judge Edgar V. Werner and a jury of twelve men Tuesday morning.

The defendant in the first case is the Milwaukee Mechanics Insurance company when the Appleton wholesaler fruit concern would compel to turn over $1,000 insurance for the loss suffered in the fire of their warehouse at the Chicago and Northwestern Railway station Mar. 28. The other six suits are commenced for a similar reason. But all seven companies have withheld the insurance demanded.

The property involved was insured for $20,000, of which the Milwaukee Mechanics Insurance company held $3,000. The other insurance firms are Alleman's Fire Insurance company, Philadelphia Fire & Marine Insurance company, Rhode Island Insurance company, Northern Insurance company of New York, Providence Washington Insurance company and American Central Insurance company. The indemnity demanded by the Wisconsin Distributing company of the seven companies is $6,867.

The insurance companies refused payment stating that the March 28 fire which destroyed a part of the warehouse was the result of five separate fires in different parts of the building. Chief George P. McGowan of the fire department and Assistant Chief Nicholas Reider were brought in to testify as to the appearance of the fire as they found it when the firemen arrived.

Street Car Always Has Right Of Way

(This is the tenth of a series of articles explaining the city's new traffic ordinance.)

Does a street car have to stop for other traffic or does other traffic have to make way for a street car?

This is a question which the new Appleton traffic laws clear up quite definitely under the section as to right of way. Street cars, meaning those operating on tracks rather than on motorbuses used for this purpose, "shall have the right of way along such tracks between cross streets," according to the ordinance. The driver whose automobile is on the tracks or too near them is required to turn out on signal from the motorman.

Streets cars are subject to orders of a traffic officer, however, when one is stationed at an intersection.

Street Car Always Has Right Of Way

(This is the tenth of a series of articles explaining the city's new traffic ordinance.)

Does a street car have to stop for other traffic or does other traffic have to make way for a street car?

This is a question which the new Appleton traffic laws clear up quite definitely under the section as to right of way. Street cars, meaning those operating on tracks rather than on motorbuses used for this purpose, "shall have the right of way along such tracks between cross streets," according to the ordinance. The driver whose automobile is on the tracks or too near them is required to turn out on signal from the motorman.

Streets cars are subject to orders of a traffic officer, however, when one is stationed at an intersection.

It is unlawful to drive through any

THE POST-CRESCENT'S PROGRAM FOR A GREATER APPLETON

Probably the most important controversy of the present national political campaign is centered around the Supreme court of the United States. whether the congress should be given the power to supersede its decisions. Because of the importance of this controversy to the future of America, the Post-Crescent is devoting almost its entire editorial page today to discussion of the Supreme court and the constitution.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE CONSTITUTION

By far the most important issue of the present campaign is the proposal to transfer to congress the right to set aside a court decision with reference to constitutional questions and thus make congress, in fact, supreme unto itself. This is a very extreme change in our form of government, with possibilities of such an unusual character that every voter should not only welcome discussion and give serious and solemn thought to the proposal, but have before him the results that may be brought about if the change is made.

Too few of our voters have ever read the constitution or realize the effect of it upon our every day life. If they knew that the constitution is itself the direct cause of the happiness and contentment of a hundred and ten millions of people and that without it, misery and ruin would inevitably follow, there would be a more thorough study of its provisions and a more thoughtful reflection upon any proposed change in it. We do not believe that it is the intention of the Socialists to wreck the country but the step they propose may effect a great harm even though it be unintentional.

The constitution is called the "Fundamental Law of the Land." That means that the constitution is in fact the law as determined by the people themselves. Before it became the constitution of the United States it was submitted to a vote of the people. Coming therefore directly from the people, and the people constituting the government itself, it becomes the supreme or fundamental law of the land. It must be obeyed or the rule of the people is a myth. The constitution does not seek to cover everything in the life of the people. That would be impossible to put in any one document at any one time. After providing for the establishment of the executive, legislative and judicial departments of the government, the qualifications of various officials, their powers, functions and duties, it sets up the basic principles upon which the government must be maintained. These principles all have the purpose of insuring to the people the greatest amount of personal and individual freedom compatible with an efficient and orderly administration of the government. and particularly do they have the purpose of protection of every person without regard to his position in society or his walk in life. The time has long since passed when the principles set forth in the constitution are even debatable. They are freely admitted by every political party with the possible exception of the Socialists. The constitution seeks to secure to every person the right to an uninterrupted enjoyment of his life, his limbs, his body, his property, his health and his reputation. To do so it prohibits slavery or involuntary servitude; prohibits condemnation without fair trial; prohibits the trial of a person twice for the same offense and provides other measures to secure to every person a fair trial; prohibits religious tests or the establishment of a state religion; insure freedom of speech and of the press; protects property rights legitimately acquired; and contains other provisions along the same general lines and aimed at the same general purpose.

The people today are satisfied with the constitution. No one proposes to change the principles of the constitution. But the question at stake is how and by whom shall the constitution be enforced?

Enforcement of the Constitution

In adopting the principles of the constitution the American people were guided not only by their own experience but by the experiences of other governments. It will be very clear to everyone at the outset that to adopt a constitution containing satisfactory principles of government is but a part of the problem of government. The next part, and of equal importance, is to enforce those principles. The adoption of the constitution containing such well-known principles as have been set forth, would, alone, never build the American republic. It was necessary that the American people for over a century live up to those principles and that a violation of them be not tolerated.

Other nations that have made miserable failures in the matter of government have had constitutions with just as honorable and just as praiseworthy provisions as the constitution of the United States. One never hears of the French revolution of 1792, the delegates of the people met in the city of Paris and after considerable conference and debate agreed upon a constitution. That constitution was submitted to a vote of the people of France and carried overwhelmingly. As soon as the announcement of its adoption was made, bonfires were kindled from one border of the nation to another to evidence the joy of the people. History records that a day was set aside as the day of banquet when the French people amidst great rejoicing, thanked the Almighty for their constitution. And yet, inside of two years, the gutters literally flowed with human blood and the guillotine was warm from overwork. Why? The answer is simply that the French constitution was not enforced. It gave to the general assembly or congress of France certain rights. That congress exceeded those rights. It gave to the executive certain privileges. The executive exceeded those privileges. It gave to different departments or states throughout the country certain enumerated powers. Those states exceeded their powers. It provided specific methods for the assessment and collection of taxes. Those charged with that very work violated the fundamental law of their own land, with the result that entire states or departments refused to pay any taxes whatsoever; and out of order and happiness came confusion and misery. The French revolution is attributable to the fact that there was no method provided of enforcing the provisions of the French constitution.

Take Mexico. If you would read the constitution of the government of Mexico, or rather the several constitutions which they have had there in the last fifteen years, the documents would sound just as pleasing to the ear as the constitution of the United States. In fact most of their provisions were copied from our own constitution. And yet today Mexico is a shambles. The only law that rules is the law of the sharp-shooter. He who is quickest with the trigger, is the best insurance risk. And why? The answer is the same as that with respect to France. The splendid provisions of the Mexican constitutions were not enforced. The Mexican president asserted rights that did not belong to him; and with the strength of the army or other and corrupt departments of the government at his back, he has been able to create a despotism.

It does not take very fast reading to understand that while disorder and the violation of basic principles always hurt everyone, the weak, the humble and the lowly are those who are usually injured the most.

The Remedy

It has been said in this campaign that the constitution does not give the courts the right to declare a law unconstitutional, that the courts have arbitrarily taken this authority or power and tyrannically abused it. Nothing could be further from the truth. Section 1 of article III of the constitution vests "the judicial power in one supreme court, etc."—and Section 2 of the same article specifically provides that "The judicial power shall extend to all cases, in law and equity, arising under this constitution, etc." It is difficult to write any plainer language giving the courts the power exercised by them. A knowledge of what the supreme court of the United States has done in protection of the rights of the people generally against exploitation by powerful, sinister groups is an equal refutation of the charge that there has been any conduct upon the part of that great court even remotely partaking of the nature of tyranny. We mean to say that there is not one single example, not one, where the supreme court of the United States has done aught save to protect the people in the principles written by the people into their constitution, to protect them from unscrupulous interests, or blind fanatics or corrupt instruments of foreign powers and that in the overwhelming majority of the cases the persons protected were poor, weak and humble and the attempted exploiters were rich, strong and haughty. The first violation of the constitution by congress was in actually passing a law conferring on the supreme court of the United States more power than was given to that court by the constitution itself. When the question arose in the supreme court of the United States as to whether or not that additional power would be exercised, the court said in substance this: "The constitution says that this court shall have certain powers. Congress gives us greater powers. From whom shall we take authority, from the constitution which comes from the people or from the congress which is actually disobeying the directions of the people?" And the supreme court of the United States refused to accept the additional power conferred upon that court by congress. It is interesting to note that in the one hundred thirty-five years of the existence of this republic under the constitution, with congress in that length of time passing approximately 150,000 different acts or laws but 53 have been declared by the supreme court to transgress the constitution; and of these six different acts of congress sought to give the supreme court of the United States more power and greater privileges than congress had a right to confer upon it, and in each instance the supreme court declined the power and the greatness offered it by congress. Does that indicate that the court seeks more power? Sixteen of the fifty-five acts condemned were condemned by the supreme court of the United States because congress was exercising powers that belonged to the different states; and nineteen of the acts condemned affected the individual or personal rights or liberties of the people.

It is a noticeable fact that during the first fifty years of the republic's life the supreme court had occasion but once to condemn an act of congress as transgressing the constitution. That was in the time when the people elected their most capable talent to congress. That situation no longer exists.

If the present proposal to permit congress to interpret the constitution of the United States is ever put in effect, it must necessarily follow that the legislatures of the various states must be given authority to interpret the state constitutions. A thorough reading of what various legislative bodies have been capable of doing at times should be made before further powers are passed on to these bodies; and an investigation of the different acts of congress and of the various legislatures which have been held unconstitutional will indicate how insecure would be "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" in these United States if we were to permit the present proposal to succeed. And requiring congress to reenact a law after the supreme court has held it unconstitutional is no security at all as congress would more likely reenact it than originally pass it as an attempted rebuke of the court for interfering with its prestige and its power.

It is not the purpose here to take up every provision of the constitution but merely to cite a few of those provisions held most dear by the people so that a proper judgment of the uncertainties of legislative enactments as compared to judicial decisions may be made.

(a) The constitution says: "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States." The leading purpose of this provision of the constitution was to effect the abolition of slavery, but the expression "involuntary servitude" is even broader than the word "slavery", and it has been steadfastly applied by the court so as to prevent any servitude which is in fact involuntary no matter under what form such servitude may have been disguised and to render impossible any state of bondage; in other words, to make labor free by prohibiting that control over it by which the personal services of one man are disposed of wholly at another's direction which is the essence of involuntary servitude. An investigation will show that legislative assemblies in this country have passed under the guise and name of "apprentice-ship acts" laws which have in fact violated this constitutional provision and resulted in a period of involuntary servitude in violation of the constitution; other legislative assemblies have passed the notorious "peonage acts," by which merely under another name, calling it "peonage" instead of "involuntary servitude", slavery actually flourished for a period of years, and recently in some southern states.

The action of the supreme court of the United States in condemning such legislation resulted in the protection of the most humble people in the land. Minors in the one hand and blacks on the other were protected, the one from his employer, the other from the wealthy plantation owner of the south. Their rights were sacred enough under the constitution so that the highest court in the land set aside a legislative act that transgressed those rights. As in so many other instances in the history of this republic it was the courts that protected the weak, not the legislatures.

(b) The constitution of the United States contains the provision, "No religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States, and congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." This very important provision of the constitution effectually guarantees the religious liberty of the individual against infringement of the government. Most of the state constitutions guarantee also to the individual, irrespective of sect or denomination, protection of the rights of conscience and liberty to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience. Such constitutional provisions forbid the passage by any legislative body of any law establishing a state religion or compelling the attendance of any person on the worship of a particular church or in any manner causing any citizen to contribute to the support of any place of worship or prohibiting the exercise of any religion or the teaching of any religious opinions to others.

The attempts of legislative bodies in this union to disobey this constitutional provision and to discriminate against certain religions that happened to be in a minority, are not unknown. The legislature of Missouri at one time passed an act prohibiting the appointment of any person as guardian, executor or administrator unless he complied with certain religious tests. The legislature of Oregon but a few years ago passed a law prohibiting the sending of any children under sixteen years of age to any parochial school. It required the federal court to point out, as it did, that civil, religious and educational associations are entitled to protection of the constitution as well as individuals and cannot be denied the equal protection of the laws. The courts have never held that parochial schools could not be supervised and have in fact held that the legislative bodies may set the standards of education, but when a legislature tells a Lutheran or a Catholic or one belonging to any other denomination that his children cannot go to the school which the parent selects, it is an interference with the liberties of the individual citizen that cannot be tolerated in a free country. Again it was the supreme court which protected a minority religion in Oregon from the intolerance of the majority acting through the legislature.

(c) The constitution also provides, "congress shall make no law abridging the freedom of speech or of the press," and the various state constitutions generally contain this or a similar provision. Freedom of speech and of the press are the cornerstones of our institutions. And yet several instances where legislative bodies have attempted to restrain and punish the exercise of this right are in existence. These legislative bodies have been met by the declaration of our courts, "If the publication is neither blasphemous, obscene or defamatory, then under the constitution no court has the right to restrain it and no legislature the power to punish for it." The legislature of New York at one time passed an act giving to the police the right to suppress newspapers under certain conditions and after the police had in fact suppressed a Socialist publication, the supreme court of the United States came to the aid of that Socialist publication by holding that the legislative act was unconstitutional. The socialists were in a very small minority. Doubtless, the members of the court had little use for socialist doctrines, but the principle at stake was big, and, as is not unusual, the decision of the court was an aid to the little fellow, not the big one. In fact it was an instance where the big fellow was trying to stamp the little fellow out of existence, by preventing him from being heard. And the little fellow after being helped from the ground by the court turns around and attacks the very institution that assists him. The experience of Victor Berger, the Socialist leader, is in point. He was convicted and sentenced to twenty years imprisonment during or directly following the war. We do not know enough about the facts of the case to advance an opinion as to whether he should have been convicted. Twice congress, after Berger was elected a member of that body, refused him a seat. Berger claimed the right of free speech. Through a decision of the supreme court of the United States Berger is now a free man. The supreme court in fact protected the Socialist leader from the anger and the fury of the people and congress as well.

(d) The constitution of the United States prohibits the passage of "a bill of attainder." A bill of attainder is a legislative act which inflicts punishment without a trial or imposes a forfeiture of property as a punishment for past acts. The purpose of the constitution is very apparent. The brutal practice had prevailed in Europe of having a legislative body declare some unpopular person guilty of an offense without even giving him a chance to be heard and, in some cases, even after his death, as an excuse or justification for forfeiting his property, taking it away from his widow and children, turning them out as beggars on the street and permitting some person of pull or power to get it. Nothing could be more obnoxious to the spirit of America than a bill of attainder. The people saw with satisfaction that their constitution prohibited the passage of any such act and yet we have as a matter of fact five instances of bills of attainder being passed by legislative acts in this country, one by congress itself and the other by the legislatures of Missouri, Kansas, Kentucky and West Virginia. At the conclusion of the civil war congress in the heat of passion passed a bill of attainder forfeiting property of southern people. It took the restraining hand and the guiding eye of the supreme court of the United States to point out to congress that it had no such authority. We have some very recent evidence of what may be done by legislative bodies during a period of anger or passion. The legislatures of Nebraska, Iowa and Ohio have recently passed laws prohibiting the teaching of the German language even in a private school. The supreme court of the United States in conformity with its duty to uphold the constitution held that such laws were an infringement of the liberties of the people and a violation of their personal rights guaranteed to every individual by the constitution of the United States. Again ask yourself who is protected by these decisions, the plutocrat or the common ordinary individual?

(e) The constitution provides, "no tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any state." We can all understand what a motley array of little countries each state would make of the nation if we had a custom house at every border and when a person went from one state to another or sent goods from one state to another, a tax or custom could be laid upon it. And yet in 1898 the congress of the United States, in disregard of this provision of the constitution, levied an export tax on grain. The grain shippers of Minnesota appealed to the supreme court and that court held, in protection of the farmers of the nation, that congress had usurped its power when it attempted to levy a tax on grain exports.

Labor.

Shortly after the war we had a seemingly innumerable number of strikes and the people of the country became somewhat disgusted with the labor situation. The state of Kansas, controlled by farmers, passed a law among other things prohibiting striking. The supreme court of the United States held that that act of Kansas violated the constitution in that it deprived employers and workers of the right to freely contract and the right to quit work and the right to carry on their own business in their own way. This decision was a great triumph for the American Federation of Labor which fought the Kansas act. The other decisions which we have set forth are, for the most part, decisions protecting the humble, not the haughty; the weak and the lowly, not the strong and the powerful.

And yet when the courts make these decisions our Socialist friends wave no flags, beat no drums and blow no trumpets. When tens of thousands of men in the southern states are protected from peonage or slavery from the owners of large plantations; when the millions of American workers are protected by the courts from virtual slavery under laws such as those passed by the legislature of Kansas; when all the people, high and low, are protected in their rights of religious freedom, freedom of speech and freedom of the press, protected from bigotry and intolerance; when even the humblest tramp, accused of any offense, must be provided with legal aid and the process of the court to insure him a fair hearing and trial; when the court has prevented hostile legislative bodies from wiping out minorities such as the Socialists themselves any guaranteeing aid and security to them; and when rights as others; it would seem that the careful citizen should use caution before he abolishes such a system.

Today, perhaps more than at any other time, legislative bodies should know that there is a constitution containing provisions that must not be violated. In a number of the southern states in this country legislative bodies are admittedly under the control of the Ku Klux Klan, an organization which has sometimes acted in cruel and soulless manner. What do you suppose would happen in those states to the rights of the minorities if the Ku Klux Klan did not know that there were courts to prevent the enforcement of the miserable laws they otherwise would pass?

The Child Labor Legislation
The Socialists say that they are in favor of amending the constitution of the United States to give congress the power to regulate the employment of child labor. The overwhelming mass of the people are in favor of the same thing. But the Socialists say that the supreme court of the United States is against congress regulating child labor and that statement is not a fact. Giving here the history of the child labor legislation in congress will serve the dual purpose of showing how our Socialist friends often exaggerate the facts, and at the same time serve to indicate how congress intentionally, yes even intentionally, violates the constitution.

The constitution specifically enumerates the powers which congress has. Congress has no authority, no power at all, excepting that named in the constitution. The constitution also plainly and directly says that all the powers of government are not given to congress alone but to the individual states. Congress alone has the right to declare war because the constitution says that it may declare war; hence, of course, no state has the right to declare war. The states alone have the right to pass laws concerning child labor as well as many other subjects, such as marriage, divorce, the transfer of real and personal property, etc., because these subjects are not mentioned in the constitution as being given to congress alone and hence that power belongs to the states. We in Wisconsin are not suffering because congress had no authority to pass child labor legislation. Our legislature has passed sufficient of that to properly regulate the employment of children in industries. So have the legislatures of most of the states; but in a few of the southern states the legislatures would not pass laws regulating the employment of children and so a group of men and women, who no doubt had good intentions but didn't care if they violated the constitution so long as they had their own way, appealed to congress to pass a law for the nation so as to affect the southern states which had themselves been derelict in that regard. Congress, knowing very well that it had no authority to pass such a law under the constitution, consented to pass a law prohibiting child labor by putting a tax upon all articles manufactured in employments that used child labor. The supreme court very promptly and as properly declared that this law was a mere subterfuge, that it was an attempt to regulate child labor which power congress did not have, and that it could not be upheld that each state has the right to enact its own child labor laws. Every member of the supreme court would have been glad of the opportunity to let this law stand merely because it happened to be a good law even if congress did evade the constitution, but the duty to live up to the fundamental law of the land is more important than the advantage of the hour. The situation concerning the child labor law merely should allow the vote that the supreme court gave to the constitution even when it doesn't like it and that congress won't.

If we make this change in our constitution let it at least be made with our eyes open. There will be no longer any restraint upon congress. Even the provision that representatives in congress shall serve two years and senators six years and shall not increase their salaries may be ignored by them. They would then be able to become a tyrannical, despotic, despotic body without the people having any right to elect the servants of the people. They would actually have power to pass laws taking property from those they did not like and passing it to their favorites, or stripping the entire country and all of its inhabitants of their property and giving it to the government, which is a popular theory of the Socialists. It is no answer to this statement to say that congress would be guided by the people and not by the Socialists. The examples shown above not only indicate what may be expected from our own legislative bodies at times, but the voter must always remember that it is a rule of human nature, as constant as the sun, as old as the mountains and as undeniable as truth, that unlimited power put into the hands of any legislative body has been invariably and outrageously abused. The last five thousand years of known history prove that the people have never had a good government. The original framers of our constitution had that very definitely in mind in restraining congress from having unlimited power.

Not one word of the criticism of the supreme court of the United States is justified. The Socialists, although doubtless unintentionally, are criticizing the supreme court of the United States because the courts have not been fastidious to the people in that that court has insisted upon obeying the word of the people, the constitution. No court in any land, since the beginning of time, has been more progressive, more humane or more careful of the rights of the humble. To our government it is the Rock of Ages, steady, upright, capable and consistent. It is true that the people have a right to transfer from that steady and reliable court the power to the people which they have had since that at times becomes irresponsible, swayed by passions and prejudices, controlled by groups or blocs or powerful interests more often for private purposes than public ones, but if this transfer of power is made the government will hand over to our children will be crippled in comparison to the government we have received from our fathers.

Women Will Show How To Mark Ballot

Two political meetings of vital importance to women and a three day demonstration of marking the ballot have been arranged by the civics department of Appleton Womans club to round out its campaign of getting out the vote.

Mrs. E. R. Bowler of Sheboygan, national committee woman of the Democratic party will speak on Friday evening and Mrs. William Kittie of Madison, well known social worker and educator, will speak for the Progressives on Monday evening. Miss Zona Gele who was to have spoken for LaFollette here is unable to come because her itinerary of speeches keeps her in another state until Monday night.

Beginning Friday afternoon and continuing through Saturday and Sunday, a committee from the Womans club will be in the Whedon store building at the corner of College-ave and Oneida-st to demonstrate the marking of ballots. This demonstration, like the three meetings for women voters, is being conducted on a strictly nonpartisan plan. Literature of all three parties will be on hand for those who wish to have it after the demonstration. The store will be open Friday afternoon, all day Saturday and Sunday and both Saturday and Monday evenings.

Through the cooperation of John B. Hantschel, county clerk, the affidavit forms necessary for those who did not vote in the primaries and those who did not register on Tuesday will be available at Appleton Womans club-house and at the voting demonstration. These may be filled in in advance and taken to the polls where they will be sworn to. This will save a great deal of time at the polls.

LEGION ENGAGES ECONOMOWOC FOR SUNDAY BATTLE

Strong Semi-Pros Lined Up for the First Time—Laphams May Play Again

Kaukauna—Fans who are interested in football will have an opportunity of seeing another encounter which promises to equal that of last Sunday when the American Legion team engages with the Economowoc semi pro aggregation on the local grounds. The Milwaukee Laphams, who Sunday played a scoreless tie with the local squad, won a stiff battle by a drop kick from the Economowoc team, indicating the fracas next week will be an evenly matched affair.

It will be the first time the two teams have played together. Manager Edward Rennieck has always failed to come to a satisfactory agreement. The Economowoc outfit is scheduled to arrive here by auto Saturday afternoon so that the men will be rested for the battle.

Fans in this section of the valley may be treated to a game on Thanksgiving day. The Milwaukee Laphams were loud in their praises of their treatment here and offered to accept a contract for a return game here on that day. The Legion has never been in the habit of putting on an exhibition on that day, however, and the question will be put up to the players themselves. The management and coaches are said to be in favor of the plan.

LITTLE CHANGE IN H. S. THRIFT MARK

School Is 1 Per Cent Lower and Same Classes Receive Perfect Thrift Mark

Kaukauna—Very little change is noted from week to week in the percentage of bank deposits in the high school. This week 7 per cent of the students were savers, 1 per cent less than last week. The same classes also retain their 100 per cent records each succeeding week. The senior high class under Miss Clara Kosterman, succeeded itself as possessor of the thrift banner inasmuch as its students deposited more than the other 100 per cent classes.

In the junior high school there also has been only a small change in the percentage of each class. The first group of the seventh grade stands highest with 55 per cent and the second group is next with 75 per cent. Group "A" of the eighth grade is 55 per cent thrifty and group "B" had a record this week of 8 per cent.

M. E. CONFERENCE CLOSED TUESDAY

Kaukauna—The annual convention of the Appleton district Methodist churches closed Tuesday afternoon after a 2-day session in the local church. Thirty-six ministers and as many laymen were present at the sessions. The district takes in Neenah-Menasha on the south, cities up to the northern boundary of Wisconsin, west as far as Stevens Point and east to the lake shore including Manitowish.

Wisconsin Rapids was chosen as the next meeting place. The Rev. J. H. Tippett of Appleton, district superintendent, was chosen chairman for the Kaukauna meeting and the Rev. Virgil W. Bell of New London was secretary and treasurer.

Social Items

Kaukauna—About 150 members attended the regular meeting of the Knights of Columbus in the K. of C. hall Monday evening. A class of eight candidates was initiated by the newly elected officers. A lunch and smoker followed the meeting.

An open card party will be held Wednesday evening in Holy Cross church hall. Cash prizes will be awarded.

STORE IN MAINE RUINED BY FIRE

Mrs. Henry Santkuy, Alone in Place, Is Unable to Save Merchandise

Black Creek—The Elmer Roblee store, town of Maine, was destroyed by fire Monday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Santkuy occupied the store and lived in rooms in the rear of the building. Mr. Santkuy was at Hortonville at the time of the fire.

Mrs. Santkuy was working in the kitchen about 8 o'clock when she heard a noise and went in the store to investigate. The smoke was so dense, she couldn't use the telephone to call help. Neighbors were called, who helped save some household goods but no store goods, due to the dense smoke. The building was completely burned. A cheese factory and a residence nearby were saved by the help of neighbors.

An overheated stove was the cause of the fire. A small amount of insurance was carried by Mr. Roblee and Mr. Santkuy. The building is known as the former Scott store.

Older trappers can recall when they sold at from 10 to 15 cents each and even then there was very little demand for them. Pike, pickerel and bass are biting in Lake Poygan and Lake Butte des Morts and large quantities are daily being caught.

MAY COMPEL CITY TO ACCEPT SEWAGE FROM GRAND CHUTE

Sanitary Engineers Frown on Cess Pool for Disposal of Waste

The only solution of the problem of sewage and surface water disposal at the property of the Appleton Auto Exchange is the connection of the premises to the Appleton sewer system, according to the conclusion of O. J. Muegge, assistant state sanitary engineer, who made an investigation of the situation recently.

That is the question which the common council probably will be asked to decide either at its adjourned meeting Friday evening or at the regular meeting Nov. 5. Inasmuch as the premises affected are located on the Grand Chute side of Richmond-st, the city refused to give the applicant sewer connection.

Drilling of a deep well to take care of the waste was suggested, but the pollution of other wells in the vicinity is foreseen by the sanitary engineer as a result of this system of waste disposal.

The property for which the method of sewage disposal and basement drainage is desired consists of a soft drink parlor owned by William Fisch and the Appleton Auto exchange, of which Nicholas Reitzner is manager. From all indications, the owners contemplated the discharge of both sewage and basement drainage into a well which when completed was to be about 215 feet deep, according to Mr. Muegge.

PLAN WON'T WORK

The owners declare that all they want the well for is to receive the basement drainage, while a cesspool would be installed for the sewage. The change in plans was made after a visit of the premises by Dr. L. E. Spencer, deputy state health officer, and Dr. W. C. Felton, city health commissioner. A survey shows, however, that the topography is such that the land slopes in such a direction toward the point in which the well is located; therefore, to secure an outlet for any sewage disposal system, it would necessarily have to be discharged into the well or on the property of adjacent property owners, the engineer reports.

Both the treatment of sewage on the premises and the use of the well for the discharge of waste are frowned upon by the sanitary engineer. He recommends, however, that the premises be permitted to connect with the Richmond-st sewer.

TWO WAYS POSSIBLE

To make this possible two plans are mentioned. One is that the city permit the connection upon receiving a fair compensation for the service. The other is to adopt coercive measures. Under the statutes the board of health may require the sewage system of any city to be so planned that it may connect with any other municipality and may after a hearing, order the proper connections to be made. Mr. Muegge points out. Reasonable compensation for this service may be required. The charge is to be collected from the treasurer of the adjacent municipality. If the governing body of the other municipality considers the charge unreasonable, it may submit to arbitration or commence action in the circuit court to determine the compensation.

For the above mentioned reasons, the sanitary engineer recommends that the city permit the connection and that the property owners affected and the Grand Chute officials cooperate with the Appleton officials in securing the legislation as soon as possible.

Whether the sewer is large enough to take care of the needs of the property owners in this vicinity is a question that is troubling some of the Appleton officials. The upper part of Richmond-st is about to have a big storm sewer to relieve the property owners of surface water. The sewer bids will be acted upon Friday night.

ON THE SCREEN

"WHY WORRY" AIMS HIGHER THAN PREVIOUS LLOYD COMEDY SUCCESSSES

How can Harold Lloyd keep up the pace?

That is a question that has puzzled people inside the motion picture industry as well as the millions of followers Lloyd has won by his clean, wholesome comedy on the screen.

Yet he does. He followed "A Sailor-Made Man" with a great picture in "Grandma's Boy." He maintained the pace with "Dr. Jack" and with "Safety Lost" he hit a notch which many felt it would be impossible for him to hit again.

Nevertheless, he has in "Why Worry?" a six-reel farce which will be shown at the Elite Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday. "Why Worry?" will win many new friends for Lloyd. It is going to prove that Lloyd can not act a pace too fast for himself. Each picture he makes it become more difficult, of course, for him to equal its predecessor, but by a greater effort he always does.

"THE LOVE RANDIT" STEALS HEARTS OF DANCE HERE

The smalt of the pines and the blunder camps, the thrill of foli-trees and a ride through rapids com-trasted with the routine of an office in New York and the glitter of society is found in "The Love Randit," the Charles E. Blaney production at the New Bijou Theater today and Thurs-day.

As a stage play this melodramatic made a hit throughout the country and the picture version presented with the same appealing style and techni-que under the masterly supervision of

Harpist Is One Of Unusual Features With Sousa Band

It is doubtful if more than a few hundred people ever heard the famed harp "that once through Tera's halls," but upwards of two millions of Americans each season for the past several years have heard its twentieth century equivalent, played by Miss Winifred Bambrick, who is the harp soloist for Lieut. Com. John Philip Sousa, who is now on his thirty-second annual tour at the head of the great band which bears his name. Because of her small size and the great size of the instrument which she plays, the presence of Miss Bambrick, with the Sousa organization is interesting, and she is a figure of unusual interest when she appears in a bright frock against the background of the one hundred sombreroed musicians who make up the Sousa ensemble. Miss Bambrick will be with the band when it plays for concert in Lawrence Memorial chapel on Nov. 9.

Miss Bambrick is probably the only woman who has been a harp soloist with a band, and her instrument, usually seen only in connection with an orchestra, is but one of the many novelties which Sousa has weaved into his programs. Her appearance with the Sousa organization, of course, is due to the fact that she is one of the best harpists in America of either sex, and Miss Bambrick's solos are one of the features of the Sousa program which are certain to be widely ac-claimed. But she is more than a mere soloist. Miss Bambrick is the only woman soloist with the Sousa organization who maintains her place on the platform throughout the program, and during the band numbers she performs an important service which Sousa describes as maintaining liaison between the head sections and the brass. For some reason, not well understood either by Sousa or by sound experts, who are not musicians, the presence of the harp makes a difference in the "finished product" of the Sousa presentation which is readily noticeable if Miss Bambrick finds it necessary to cease playing for a few bars to tighten a string upon her instrument, and of all instruments, the harp with its susceptibility to weather and atmospheric conditions is most difficult to keep in exact pitch.

FINISH LEMINWAH PAVING BY SUNDAY

Paving on Leminwah-st, which was started last Wednesday by Koepke Brothers, contractors, will be completed by Sunday. Grading is entirely completed and paving is about half done. The street, which has been closed since Oct. 6, will be opened for traffic Nov. 10.

The paving is vibrolithic concrete and is 1500 feet long and 32 feet wide. The county and state pay for 18 feet of pavement and the remaining 14 feet of which is to be paid for by the city. The county is to put in the intersection on Sassaquoi.

The street is a part of state trunk highway 15. Owaissa-st has been used as a detour while construction was going on.

REFORMATION PROGRAM PLANNED FOR SUNDAY

St. Paul Lutheran church will observe the annual Reformation festival at its services next Sunday. Tribute will be paid in the sermons to Martin Luther, the reformer who established the Lutheran church in Europe many years ago. English services will be held at 9 o'clock and German worship at 10:15. Appropriate music will be sung by Concordia choir.

GIVES FARWELL SERMON ON NOV. 9

The Rev. G. A. Dettmann will preach his farewell sermon at St. Peter Lutheran church, town of Freedom, at the regular service at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, Nov. 9. He resigned recently and moved to Appleton to retire after a long service.

His successor, the Rev. Theophil Brenner will be installed at the service Sunday, Nov. 16, and will preach for the first time on Sunday, Nov. 23. He resigned his pastorate at Maple Creek to take the new position.

Services next Sunday will be conducted as usual by the Rev. Mr. Dettmann.

ZUEHLKE COMPLETES INSPECTION OF ROUTES

Postmaster William H. Zuehlke completed his fall inspection of rural routes on Friday when he accompanied Carrier Joseph Tennie over Route No. 1, most of which is located in the town of Greenville.

Owing to the fact that a considerable portion of the roads on this route is concrete or gravel, there was little to complain about, as far as the condition of the roads was concerned. The mail boxes were of the average condition. It was noted that on concrete roads there are an unusually large number of patrons who appreciate the advantage of having their boxes painted white. There have been fewer accidents, as the boxes are visible to motorists night and day.

Charles E. Blaney is sure to eclipse the stage success of the melodrama. Thrills that were hinted at in the stage version, such as the thrilling ride through the rapids in a canoe, the leap from the bridge, the flight on the floating logs, are visualized forcefully in the film version.

It is evident that the picture was made in one of the famous lumber camps of the Maine woods, for one sees tall timbers felled, logs floated and carried to the mill to be sawed into lumber. This minor current running through the production gives all the entertaining and instructive value of an educational, while the intense melodramatic situations keep the spectators on edge, wondering what is going to happen next. There is not a dull moment in "The Love Bandit."

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sorrow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

WANT $196,667 FOR HIGHWAYS IN COUNTY IN 1925

Highway Committee Asks Levy of 2 Mill Tax for Road Purposes

A total of $196,667.92 will be used for highway improvement in 1925, and the county highway committee will go before the county board of supervisors in two weeks asking for a tax levy for that amount. This sum represents a 2 mill tax on the assessed valuation of the county property. On account of an increase in the assessment, the highway tax this year will be about $4,000 more than last year.

In addition to what the county will spend for county aid purposes and for meeting state highway aid, the state will give the county approximately $15,000 in state aid. The detailed highway budget for the 1925 program has not been worked out definitely. The committee expects to hold another meeting before the November session of the board of supervisors and then will complete its plans. It is at present considering the requests of Appleton for county aid on several state highways within the city.

MISS WERTHEIMER WRITES VOLUME ON PAN-GERMAN LEAGUE

Kaukauna Young Woman Prepares Careful Statement of Pre-war Society

BY DR. SAMUEL PLANTZ

A new volume in the series of "Studies in History, Economics and Public Law," edited by the faculty of Political Science of Columbia University, has just been published by Longmans, Green & Co. under the title, "The Pan-German League." The author is Mildred S. Wertheimer, Ph. D., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Wertheimer of Kaukauna. The book is a thorough and comprehensive study of a nationalistic movement which developed in Germany after the formation of the empire and especially during the twenty-five years which preceded the world war, a movement which sought to expand Germany by colonization and to spread her culture throughout the civilized world. Miss Wertheimer has made a large use of source material in her study, having spent much time in Europe collecting information by interviewing leaders in the movement, consulting official documents, examining the literature of the organization as well as other publications and articles found in various libraries in Europe. The book shows that it is the product of painstaking labor and accurate scholarship, and it is a decided credit to its author. It throws much light on a movement that has been much talked about, often misjudged and exaggerated, and given a larger place in the development of the world war than it deserves. This movement, characterized in his book entitled "The Pan-German Plot Unmasked," says, "at the door of this society must be laid the most overwhelming responsibility for the outbreak of the war; and professor Usher in his work, 'Pan-Germanism,' remarks, 'The League, at least as obtaining for Germany and her allies control of the world.'"

Miss Wertheimer in her preface states that the purpose is to describe the Pan-German League in its "origin, aims, membership, financial status and history up to the outbreak of the war" and to evaluate "its significance in the history of the two decades before 1914, a program which she has consistently followed in the ten chapters which make up her work. The origin of the movement she locates in "the feeling of the need for an intense nationalism at home in order to further the expansion of the Empire abroad" and again she says it was "an organization and movement of nationalist at fever heat." England's extensive control in Africa led some of the chauvinistic patriots to demand that a new colonial policy be adopted by the Reichstag, and the boundaries of Germany's African territory be expanded. Out of this movement grew the united front of several cities which had given to the new "overseas policy" into the General German League which later became the Pan-German League whose purpose was to strengthen the national spirit, promote in every way German interests, direct the attention of Germany's emigrants to Germany, keep alive in the German colonies the national consciousness, develop to the highest efficiency the army and navy, secure the retention of the German language overseas, uphold German honor and superiority and spread German culture over the earth. The League was used to exert national enthusiasm for the new organization was the so-called "gripping policy of England."

The growth of the Pan-German League was not a steady triumph, but rather a hard row up stream. It had difficulty in financing its program, differences arose among its leaders, its membership grew slowly, and many leading statesmen opposed it as unnecessary and as a source of trouble by its over zealous and unbridled nationalism. It was felt it would be misunderstood by other nations, and its demands upon the Reichstag and its severe criticism of some of its actions also brought it into disfavor with many of the more sober-minded Germans. In 1899 it had about 21,000 members and in 1912 about 17,000. This lack of growth was not due to a decay in nationalism in Germany, for there was a great development in national spirit, but to the critical attitude which the League maintained toward the government. It was so extreme in its patriotism and so extravagant and narrow in its demands that it did not gather a large following or exert a dominant influence.

It is impossible here to sketch the work of the League as Miss Wertheimer has described it in its propaganda activities, its preparatory agitation, its efforts to develop a great navy, its colonial policy, its influence in the Boer war, its attitude on the Moroccan question, its periodical literature, its economic aims, and its political influence. Probably the question which interests most Americans is the degree to which it influenced German action in launching the last war. It has often been claimed that it developed that super-nationalist attitude, that widespread German chauvinism, that over-confidence in Germany's military power which did much to set the world on fire in 1914. Our author thinks the importance of the influence of the League in this respect has been overestimated in the foreign press. She shows that the newspapers of Germany gave it little space, that it had but small representation in the Reichstag, that many of the leading statesmen of Germany took no interest in it, and that the opinion of the writers, business men, university professors and others with whom she conversed was that the influence of the Pan-German League before the war has been tremendously overestimated. She quotes von Jagow as

Adventures In The Library

By ARNOLD MULDER

A VICTORIAN MODERN
William De Morgan, who died only four or five years ago, was a Victorian who lived and wrote long after the age of Victoria had passed. In the reigns of Edward and George he wrote in the manner of Thackeray, a half century after Thackeray's death, and he "got away with it."

George Meredith was a modern who wrote in the days of Thackeray and Dickens, a half century before his time. De Morgan was a modern Victorian while Meredith was a Victorian modern.

Meredith died in 1909 at the age of 81 and he always regarded as a "post-Victorian." He is never regarded as the contemporary of the great Victorians, Dickens, Thackeray and Trollope, and that whole school of writers are usually roughly thought of as living and writing at about the time of the American Civil war. Meredith was almost invariably thought of as belonging to the eighties and nineties.

Yet the fact is that Meredith's first book of poems was published in the same year as "David Copperfield" and "Pendennis," and his novel "The Order of Richard Feverel" was published in the same year as "The Tale of Two Cities" and "Adam Bede."

ABROAD OF TIMES
Meredith lived to be a much older man than Dickens and Thackeray and the other Victorians and that is the reason why he overlapped the Post-Victorian age for many years. But that was only the case of his life. Spiritually he was not of the Victorian age, although some of his most important books were written and published in the same period in which the books of the great Victorians appeared. The Victorian age instinctively recognized that he was not one of them, but that it deserved to read him. He was a neglected writer until he was an old man and he suffered keenly because of this.

He lacked the gift of popularity. Making his living as a publisher's reader he rejected the enormously successful "East Lynne," a book that has no value as literature but that was bought and eagerly read by hundreds of thousands. He could not see why the masses should want to read a book that had no merit and that was also the reason why he could not acquire popularity for his own books. He did not know what the people wanted and he never learned it. He gave them what he liked to write and so he and the great public never got together. He was always envious of George Eliot's large sales he could not give to any book of his own the qualities that made for big sales in the Victorian age.

THE VICTORIAN CENTURY MAN
All the more reason why one of today should read him. He is of today more than of yesterday. Physically he lived in the nineteenth century, spiritually in the twentieth, and the twentieth might well take the trouble to read the books of the man who belongs to it in every sense that counts. "The Order of Richard Feverel" was written so long ago that George Meredith read it and exclaimed that the man who wrote that book was no fool. But it is much more modern than the date of its publication would seem to indicate.

Usually "The Egoist" is instanced as Meredith's outstanding novel and it probably has a right to that claim. But it is not always wise for a reader who wishes to become acquainted with another he has not read before to read his greatest book. "The Egoist" is extremely difficult and many very intelligent readers are scared away from Meredith by it. Reading it is almost like taking a difficult course in a university.

"But 'The Order of Richard Feverel' is not like that. It is not by any means an 'easy' book but it can be read and enjoyed for its story. The character of Lucy is one of the most saying: "Before the War, the so-called Alldeutschtum was felt to be an uncomfortable factor, hindering political action, but it had not authoritative influence upon the decision of the government." The fact seems to be that the Pan-German League overrode its bow, and by its extreme demands lost favor with the more sober minded people of Germany; but its influence with the unthinking classes, the people who hold to the theory "My country, right or wrong, my country," was unquestionably considerable. It helped produce that overgrowth of nationalism, that exaggerated German consciousness, that belief in the inherent superiority of the German people which one so often encounters in reading the pro-war literature. Miss Wertheimer sums up her estimate of the League as follows: "It does not seem quite fair to characterize German chauvinism as a whole as 'Pan-Germanism' and consider it as something peculiar to Germany alone. However, the Pan-German League itself was doubtless one of the most strident jingo societies in the world and its noise was quite incommensurate with its size. It is notorious for its views on foreign policy and here it might be compared with jingo societies in other lands. But it is also notorious for its strictly 'Pan-German' doctrines, the so-called union of all the Germans in the world. In the latter field, it has a bit from kindred hundred new cent organizations in other countries and shows the philosophical trend that is supposed to be typical of the German mind. Even in this field, however, the size and resources of the League must be taken into consideration. But the influence of the League on German chauvinism as a whole was distinctly beneficial and tended to produce an aggressive colonial policy that has acquired for Germany a reputation such as an unpleasant reputation."

Miss Wertheimer's book will be very interesting to those who wish to inform themselves on German politics before the war and especially to those who are interested in the subject with which it deals.

appearing in English fiction and the story of the boy and girl love of Richard and Lucy is one of the tenderest descriptions of the passion in any literature.

Friends of Meredith are said to have begged him not to kill Lucy at the end of the book but he was deaf to their pleas. He knew it would interfere with the novel's popularity but he was a realist who had the courage to sacrifice popularity to what he believed was logical. He deliberately killed her though he knew he was killing his bank account at the same time.

BOOKS AND BOOK MEN

At last America seems set for the literary renaissance which has been on its way these many years.

Despite signs of reaction in other spheres of our national life, the new literature seems to have caught on. And with it comes a revival that will leave its mark imprinted, not only in the book, but in the mind.

Not only in the writings slated for fall and winter publication are evidences of the impending change to be found. They can be found in the expression of these millions whose writing is usually limited to a short letter or a picture-postcard notation.

When they take to the expression of the newer writers, and all their notes or scribbles with terse direct words, punctuated with the inevitable dots and dashes, then a new literary upheaval has been successfully weathered. For nothing short of a revolution could have changed the ponderous, word-ostly of the average letter-writer.

Following is an example of this new trend in our writing. It is a piece laboriously picked out on a typewriter by a young artisan, whose days are spent in a photographic dark room, and his nights in a tenement district of New York's East Side. He is untrained, uncultured, uncouth. Yet he writes of himself in a note to a friend:

"Broke. Have you ever been broke in New York? A furnished room. Hunger. God, what misery! My only consolation. The violin. I play 'This.' What a class! It makes even the player cry."

"Snap... A string broke. Misery loves company. No money to buy a new string. A walk through the park. Where can I get some money? Seven million people live around me. Yet I am alone and friendless. I drift to the Bowery. Missionaries and book shops. 15-cent lodging houses. Where the scum of the world gathers when loked."

"I start to walk back to my dingy room. If I only had some money. A quarter would do. Ten cents for coffee and rolls. And 15 cents for a violin string. A pawnshop. 'We buy and sell anything,' the sign reads. But I have nothing to sell."

"I put my finger in my mouth. A gold cap on a back tooth. I pull it back and forth. It is loose. I try to take it out. Not so easy. It hurts. I bleed. try a little harder. Off comes the gold cap."

"Into the pawnshop. 'Give me a dollar for this?' I asked the Shop-keep. 'Too much,' he answers unconcerned. I start to saunter out. 'I'll give you a quarter,' the pawnbroker offers. A moment's hesitation. I take the quarter."

"Coffee and rolls in a sweltering one-arm restaurant. A cigar would be a comfort. Only 15 cents left. Shall I be careless or a violin string. Music hath charms. It wins. I buy the string. Broke again."

"The rooming house where I live. A gas hall light flickering through the broken window of the front door. I must play quietly. The landlady must not hear. She'll want her rent. And I'm broke."

"My room. The violin. The only friend. The new string is in place. I must play quietly. The landlady must not hear. I put the mute on the fiddle. Turn out the light. What! I play 'Humoresque.' A laugh while my heart is crying..."

Walter Pritchard Eaton, author of "The Actor's Heritage," has been in the writing business ever since he graduated from Harvard in 1906. Starting in on the old Boston Journal he moved on to the dramatic department of the New York Tribune within two years. Since that time he has served in a critical capacity for the Sun, the American Magazine, and Judge. In his spare time he has turned out some twenty volumes of stories, poems, essays, and one play—Queen Victoria, written in collaboration with David Carl and produced last winter. He also lectures on dramatic topics and teaches in the Columbia School of Journalism.

Author Puts Keen Humor In New Book

Few American writers have shown as humorous an understanding of youth as Harry Leon Wilson. His new novel, "Professor How Could You?" reveals that his understanding and humor are not confined to youth. Harry Leon Wilson, Jr., pictured above, is among the few who won't read "Professor How Could You?" this season. He has something to look forward to.

CHILDREN CLAMOR FOR OLD FAVORITES

"Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn" Still Among Best Circulators

The most popular books in the adults department of Appleton Public Library have changed little since last week, but in the children's department an increase has been noted in the demand for fiction. The best circulators last week among children were "The Secret Garden," "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "Polly Oliver's Problems," "The Lost Prince," "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn." None of the books are new, but they have been best circulators for years and years and probably will continue so for a long time.

"Rose of the World" by Kathleen Norris, "The Priceless Pearl," by Alice Duer Miller, "Peacock Tail," by Temple Bailey and "Rugged Water" by Joseph C. Lincoln are four books of fiction that were most in demand in the adults department last week. Mrs. Norris, Temple Bailey, Lincoln and Alice Duer Miller are among the most popular authors in the library and their books never fail to have a good circulation.

The book of non-fiction that was most widely-read last week was "The Real Sarah Bernhardt," a biography of the great actress by Basil Woon. The volume is illustrated with rare photographs of Bernhardt and the story itself reveals many hints for untold incidents.

Women Have To Dress Up Before Voting

"There are obstacles, seemingly trivial, but none the less serious in their effect on the women voters," says Sarah Schuyler Butler in the November Scribner's Magazine. "These arise from the vagaries of the human character. A very wise politician told us that in his country, it was very difficult to persuade the women on the farms to vote, because they 'hadn't time to get dressed up.' Apparently the men go to the polls in overalls or working clothes, but feminine vanity decrees that the women must put on their best dresses and hats before they start on such another difficult errand. There is still another difficulty which this same politician explained to us. Frequently on Election Day the farmers take a day off. They leave home early in the morning, drive to the polling place cast their ballot, and stay until dark talking to the friends and discussing the political situation. As a result the women of their families have no chance whatever to vote even if they wish to do so. As we pursued our investigations it was astonishing to find on what trifling considerations the success or failure of a political organization in getting out its voters may depend."

Passive vs. Active Wealth

MEN who want both to succeed and to render service should strike out on new lines rather than travel the worn paths of accepted success. It requires a better type of mind to seek out and support or create the new — — — Albert W. Atwood.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) always has sought to create the new to add to the tangible wealth of the community—to make new values, thus leading in service and gaining leadership through service.

Petroleum in the ground is potential and passive wealth. Petroleum on the highways, in service stations, in tractors, trucks and automobiles, is active, usable wealth, rendering a distinct and important service to humanity.

Before the organization of great companies to transport and refine crude petroleum and to make the resulting products available to all the people, this vast, potential wealth was not worth a cent.

Today, with the machinery of industry in place and hundreds of millions of barrels of crude passing in an unceasing stream from oil wells to consumer, this passive wealth has become active—and what was valueless before is now worth billions of dollars.

This is service—the most real and fundamental kind of service. It is service due to leadership—to keeping always "a little in front of the next." And in return for its part in this service, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has taken but a tiny fraction of the new national wealth which it has created.

People in general think of wealth in terms of money—but wealth is not money. It is merchandise—it is products which add comfort, luxury and satisfaction to life.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has taken the initiative in rendering this great service to humanity—it has converted passive wealth into hundreds of useful products which are prominent factors in the industrial and agricultural development of the nation—it has made petroleum products of every description available to the thirty millions of people in the Middle West.

HEIDERER OUTPOINTS CAWLEY IN TUESDAY'S CARD

Battling Herb Stops Dugan, Gritty Chicago Boy, In Fourth Round

Greater Ring Experience Saves Washi Hendricks from Defeat by Classy Fond du Lac Newcomer

TUESDAY'S FIGHT RESULTS
Johnny Heiderer, Milwaukee, outpointed Jimmy Cawley, Chicago, in ten rounds.

Battling Herb, Oshkosh, stopped Jimmy Dugan, Chicago, in fourth round.
Washi Hendricks, Kaukauna, shaded Battling Beck, Fond du Lac, in six rounds.

Earl Rogers, Appleton, won on points from Kid Knocko, Appleton, in six rounds.

Johnny Heiderer, Milwaukee, Tuesday night lived up to his reputation when he outpointed Jimmy Cawley of Chicago in seven out of ten rounds in the windup of a Midwest Athletic association fight card which opened the winter season at Armory G here. Heiderer carried the fight to his lanky opponent in every round, but in the second, fourth and fifth the Chicago boy came out of his shell long enough to win draws. Heiderer, fighting something on the style of Johnny Dundee, shot rights and lefts to Cawley's head and body almost at will, swinging out of a puzzling crouch to land heavily time after time. Cawley is a tough lad who took all Heiderer could give him and sent in several hard fights and lefts to the head on his own account, but he showed reluctance to mix it and several times had to be warned to fight. Both scrapers were overweight when they weighed in at 3 P. M. Tuesday afternoon, Heiderer fighting at 153 1/2 and Cawley at 158 pounds.

In the semi windup Battling Herb of Oshkosh, giving his usual classy exhibition, stopped Jimmy Dugan of Chicago, a tough, brainy little man, in the fourth round. Washi Hendricks of Kaukauna shaded Battling Beck of Fond du Lac in the second preliminary, and Earl Rogers won a newspaper decision over Kid Knocko in the six round opener.

HEIDERER LEADS

In the windup Heiderer jumped in at the sound of the gong and met Cawley more than half way, leading with rapid lefts to both head and body. He fought in a crouching position with his face open, but kept his body well covered and before Cawley could get in a blow had showered his face with a series of stinging slams, which, however, failed to phase the Chicago lad. Cawley stood up under the storm and paying little attention to Johnny's swings landed a couple of short lefts and rights to his face. Heiderer landed two blows to Cawley's one and the first round was his by a considerable margin.

In the second stanza Cawley woke up under a couple of heavy swings to the head and crashed both blows to Heiderer's face which started Johnny's long nose to bleeding but didn't worry him much. They exchanged blows all over the ring with Heiderer doing most of the leading, but Cawley managed to make it pretty even.

JOHNNY PLAYS ROPES

Heiderer played the ropes in the third, bounding back with both arms swinging and landing to Cawley's body and head, while he kept his own body well covered, but took several more to his face. Cawley avoided punishment by rushing into clinches frequently and dropped this round also. The next was a good draw, Cawley was playing almost exclusively for Heiderer's face, and had his nose running red steadily. The Chicago lad held his own in the fifth also, rushing in for a rapid exchange in both, in which he gave as good as he got, but neither seemed to have enough behind his swings to hurt the other.

Cawley led off with a right to the head in the sixth, and several of his blows to the head seemed to irritate Johnny. Heiderer waded in and slammed his lanky opponent all over the ring, landing time after time all over Cawley's anatomy. His nose was bleeding badly, but it failed to worry him, and his body punches were wearing Cawley down.

CAWLEY IS WARNED

Referee Dauber Jaeger warned Cawley to fight in the eighth after Heiderer had tried to force the battle and backed the Chicago boy completely by around the ring, and time Cawley respected but his blows were landing on Heiderer's arms without effect. Heiderer, meanwhile, allowed Jimmy to pound the top of his head while he sent in one swing after the other and slowed Cawley up again. Commissioner Watson ordered Cawley to open up between rounds, and although he tried to respond he found Heiderer's shell too hard to crack and in trying to penetrate it was forced to take a storm of heavy blows to face and body. Heiderer tried for a knockout, holding to the ropes with his right while he swung his left to the jaw, but Cawley was too tough and took them all standing up. Johnny tried this three times in the last two rounds, landing every time, but in the final round Cawley still was going as good as in the first. The tenth round brought more action than most of the previous ones, but Heiderer still was leading and shed Cawley's blows like water.

The fight was Heiderer's by a big margin.

DUGAN IS GAME

Battling Herb had a big advantage in both weight and reach over Jimmy Dugan, a stable mate of Cawley, who was substituted for Jake Lang on 12-hours notice. Lang was far overweight, and Herb added several pounds trying to train up while Lang

Zuppke Is Fearful Of Ohio State

Urbana, Ill.—Because of the decisive defeat of Michigan by Illinois, football experts are already conceding the "Big Ten" championship to Harold Grange and the rest of the Illinois squad.

Last season Michigan and Illinois finished in a tie for Western conference honors. The overwhelming defeat of Michigan has caused the critics to regard Zuppke's team as a certainty to win the Big Ten title. If Grange isn't injured.

Coach Bob Zuppke of Illinois is one of the few who isn't taking seriously all the nice things being said about himself and his team.

"A team that must still beat Chicago, Iowa, Minnesota and Ohio State is long way from being the champion," Zuppke said. "Any one of those four teams is strong enough to upset the dog."

"It is football precedent that Ohio State always plays its best game against us. For that reason we always fear teams coached by Wilce."

"Last season we had a great team, yet were only able to win from Ohio State by the scant margin of 9 to 0, despite the fact that Michigan and Chicago had beaten the same team 23 to 0 and 17 to 0."

HEART FAILURE CAUSE OF FIGHTER'S DEATH

Tonkers, N. Y.—An autopsy performed Tuesday indicated that acute dilation of the heart had caused the death Monday night of Ralph Thomas, a New York middleweight boxer, who perished in the second round of a fight with Alberto Coches, middleweight champion of South America.

Coches, arrested on a technical charge of homicide, was released on $1,000 bail to await the formal inquest, for which no date has been set. The referee and judges, held after the fight, also were released after they had explained that neither fighter had delivered a head blow up to the time Thomas fell to the floor of the ring. He was dead when the referee picked him up.

The little fellow was extremely clever and willing to mix it, but Herb stood up under a couple of heavy swings to the head and crashed both blows to Heiderer's face which started Johnny's long nose to bleeding but didn't worry him much. BELOIT HAS BEST CHANCE AT LITTLE FIVE GRID TITLE

Lawrence and Ripon Still Are in Running With Carroll as Rival

LITTLE FIVE STANDINGS
	Won	Lost	Tie	Pct.
Beloit	1	0	0	1.000
Lawrence	1	0	1	1.000
Ripon	1	0	1	1.000
Carroll	0	0	0	.000
Northwestern	0	3	0	.000

Milwaukee—Football fans of the Little Five conference had to revise their championship estimates considerably this week on account of the strength of Ripon college, Saturday in holding the favorite, Lawrence college, to a 7 to 7 tie. The situation still leaves Ripon with a chance for the title, Lawrence a like chance and Beloit college in the best position with no ties or defeats this season.

Carroll college, dark horse of the conference, has yet to play its first game, which will be with Lawrence at Appleton, Saturday, Nov. 1. This game will decide if Carroll is to remain in the title race, and may give Lawrence a chance to boost its stock in the standings. The boosting of Lawrence stock, in case of a win, is made important because of the fact that none of the other conference teams have games, Nov. 1. Northwestern college, the other conference team, is hopelessly out of the race, having been defeated by Lawrence, Beloit and Ripon.

Lawrence, despite its showing with Ripon Saturday, still holds an advantageous position, according to Coach Mark Catlin, who says that the slump was due in the main to the weakened condition of the team through loss of injuries and by inept play. The states he will have his first string in better trim next Saturday and expects to dispose of Carroll handily. On the other hand, the Carroll grid players are primed for the Lawrence contest and are making claims of victory.

SPORT VIEWS AND NEWS

Ripon Saturday gave the Lawrence a taste of the medicine the latter handed Iowa the previous week, when the Crimson held the Blue to a 7 to 7 tie. Lawrence was doped to win by a wide margin, but overconfidence and lack of pep upset the dog, and in consequence Ripon's bones for the Little Five championship were boosted at the expense of Lawrence.

LaCrosse high was pretty lucky to defeat Appleton at Lawrence field Saturday. The breaks were against the Orange all through the game, and a blocked punt gave the husky invaders a lead by a wide margin. Defensively the Appleton youngsters were faultless, holding the LaCrosse squad to two first downs, but they were unable to do much against their heavier rivals on the offense.

Friday will be a gala day at Kaukauna. The Electric City high school has the best football team in many years, and looks forward to holding Appleton to a close score there. Coach Bill Smith is directing the efforts of the Kaukauna gridgers and the results of his methods were evident Saturday when Kaukauna blanked the strong New London squad, 33 to 0.

Manitowoc is getting into the habit of losing. After dropping their game here two weeks ago by a wide margin, the Shipbuilders Saturday allowed Sheboygan to climb another notch toward the top of the Valley conference ladder. Sheboygan easily took the contest, 15 to 0, and Coach Iverson's youngsters held the upper hand from start to finish.

A dazzling passing attack gave Neenah a high 44 to 0 victory over Beloit Saturday. The air seemed to be full of balls most of the time, and the invaders were puzzled from start to finish. Several long runs featured the game as the Twin City players broke through the hostile line, and it looked like a foot race with Neenah in the lead.

West Green Bay treated Oshkosh to another drubbing Saturday, 28 to 0. The Sawdust City squad was clearly outclassed, and it looks as though West Green Bay will give its mates in the Valley conference a hard run for their money once more.

BILL ROPER DEMANDS SPEED IN HIS TIGERS

Coach Bill Roper, with a hope of turning out a Princeton team that will best Harvard and Yale, is giving much consideration to fleetness of foot in picking his eleven. He is conceding weight for speed, other things being equal.

WHETSTONE CORNELL'S ONLY STAR, DOBIE SAYS

Glenn Dobie of Cornell admits that in Walter Whetstone, fullback of the year's team, he has one worthwhile athlete who will be in the headlines before the close of the football season.

Appleton High Grid Squad Pointing For Contest At Kaukauna

Electric City Plans to Declare Friday a Half Holiday to Permit Crowds to Witness Battle

Preparing for their annual battle with Kaukauna, high school, traditional enemies, at Kaukauna Friday afternoon, Appleton high school griders this week are spending most of their daily drill periods on passing and running with the ball. The LaCrosse tilt here proved the Orange youngsters still a little weak in these phases of the game, and Kaukauna is said to be particularly strong in that respect this year.

No new plays are being developed this week. Coach Jule Kevin is rehearsing formations already tested and will keep at them until his charges have learned them perfectly before he branches out. The Appleton youngsters came through the hard LaCrosse battle without injuries and are ready for their invasion of the Electric city, but expect another serious clash there.

The Kaukauna schoolers are heavier than ever before this year, and it is reported they are going strong under the direction of "Tiger Bill" Smith, former Lawrence star, who is putting in his first year as coach there. Last week they easily shut out the strong New London team, 33 to 0, using second string men almost exclusively in the second half.

All Kaukauna plans to be at the game. Most of the businessmen will declare Friday a holiday. Scores will be closed and the mills and factories plan to permit their employees to see the game. Although the Electric City squad does plan to expect a win, the youngsters do hope to hold the score down as close as possible, and as Smith has taught them to depend chiefly on fight and grit, the meeting is bound to be a hot one.

DE PAUW CHOOSES GUY MORRISON GRID COACH

Greencastle, Ind.—Guy Morrison, former Missouri university football star assumed the duties as head football coach of De Pauw university Tuesday. He was elected at a meeting of the De Pauw athletic board of control and members of the football squad Monday night, after James N. Ashmore, head coach, had been granted an indefinite leave of absence. Morrison had been Ashmore's assistant.

SOLE DESIRE OF IOWA IS TO STOP ILLINOIS' STAR

Ingverson Drills His Charges for Agility in Campaign Against Grange

Chicago—To stop "Red" Grange, sensational Illinois back, is Iowa's sole desire as it whets its football weapons for Saturday's game with Illinois, leader of the Western conference of the scramble.

Coach Earl Ingverson of Iowa, former pupil of Bob Zuppke, Illinois mentor, is perfecting a line in which agility takes precedence over weight. The tackles particularly are being drilled to halt the fleet Grange. The secondary defense is being placed in such positions as to be able to nail him the moment he gets into the scrimmage line.

Chicago, with everything involved in its meet with Purdue, is giving long hours to secret practice.

A new offense against Michigan is being prepared at Minneapolis, host to the Wolverines at Minneapolis Saturday. Since both have been beaten, only the question of individual supremacy is involved.

Modern Hope Chest Fills Very Easily

Today's hope chest is filled more quickly than perhaps less lovingly than grandmother's. But this is a rapid age and the fullness of the chest depends upon the lining of the pocketbooks of those who fill its depth.

The old "dozen" of everything has gone out of fashion. The modern girl is putting away sets, runners, trays, cloths, tea-table linens, porch linens and modern things in use today. But few damask table linens add weight to the chest. Personal trousseau articles are not considered part of the chest's filling.

COLORFUL LINENS
In some of the bridal linens the modern craze for color has crept in and the fine sheets have embroidered monograms done in colors with wash silks in fine satin stitch. Towels and other linens are done to match. Six sheets are made with hemstitched hem simply stitched with color, and six are for upper sheets, showing elaborately embroidered hems. These will remain colorful and dainty as long as the work is unfaded. The more conservative are having sheets made up in pure white, which is likely to remain at its best a long time.

There are long runners, cross-runners, four-armed cloths and center cloths made to take the place of the old tablecloths. The long runners are embroidered in colors and patterns to match with the furniture and hangings where they are used. The long runners and cross-runners are a foreign idea. As many crosspieces are used as there are extra guests expected. They are slipped under the long runner and so form a resting place for a plate service at either side of the table.

DAINTY BLANKET COVERS
The four-arm cloth has some disadvantages. The main one is the difficult task of proper laundering. If made of any soft material it may stretch in the corners, so that it will not lie flat on the table and it is a hard matter to fold it so that it will not show creases. These cloths are usually embroidered around the entire hem, which is narrow, but in some cases they are hemstitched with a color thread running through them. Sometimes dainty French blanket covers are added to the collection in the modern girl's hope chest.

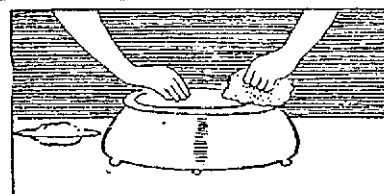

Household Suggestions

FOR CHILDREN'S CLOTHES
Hanger picks make very pretty trimmings for children's clothes, and may be let out as the child's increased height necessitates a longer frock.

SILVER POLISH HANDY
Keep some silver polish in your salt shaker over the sink so you have it to remove stains on your silver as you wash your dishes.

KEEPS GRAPES FRESH
Grapes will keep fresh much longer if you place the bunches, carefully on wire racks and keep them in the cellar than if you leave them in the basket.

FOR TARNISHED NICKEL
Wash tarnished nickel with a paste of alcohol and whiting applied with a flannel cloth.

FOR SALAD DRESSING
The liquid from mustard pickles should be saved and used in salad dressings or in relish.

FOR SIMPLE ROOM
Unbleached muslin makes quaint curtains for a simply furnished room, particularly if you embroider or paint bold motifs on it in bright colors.

USE A LEMON
To make the meat of a chicken juicy and tender rub the fowl inside and out with a cut lemon before you cook it.

Good Manners

INVITATIONS GALORE

If the families of the young engaged couple are at all in the habit of entertaining, the announcement of the engagement is the signal all ways for a shower of invitations.

Proper Eating Is Means To Good Graceful Figure

New York—If we were to become idol worshippers we would take as the symbol of our devotion a slender graceful woman, according to Dr. Robert H. Rose of New York.

"Long ago, when little food was to be had in China and most of the population was half starved," he explains, "they visualized as their subconscious ideal a round-faced man with a huge stomach, distended from rich food and good living."

"Today we have more food than we want or need, most of us, and we have a tendency to take on flesh, so our ideal is a slender figure, possible with many of us only by abstemious selection at the lunch counter."

"I believe the next generation will be much more slender, more beautiful and infinitely more healthy than this one, because of this ideal."

Dr. Rose has just published a book, "Eat Your Way to Health," in which he makes it appear that we are the masters of our own faces and the captains of our jowls.

FAT DANGEROUS

In gradually changing the physical architecture from the straight to the curved, Dr. Rose sees not only a less beautiful structure but an increased danger from high blood pressure, lung trouble and many tendencies that clip from 10 to 20 years from life.

His theory is simple. You are either just right, or too thin or too fat. If you are just right, you adopt a maintenance diet as soon as you feel your self taking on weight. If you are too heavy, as the majority of us are, you following a reducing diet until you have reduced to your proper weight, then continue on a maintenance diet which will keep you just there.

The diet to get thin allows you from 1000 to 1200 calories a day. The maintenance diet, upon which you neither lose nor gain is around 1500 a day. To build up you are allowed to go to 3,000 calories a day or beyond.

CONSIDER VITAMINES

In order intelligently to build up your menus, the doctor believes you must take vitamins into consideration so that your diet is not too limited. The trouble with most diets that reduce very quickly is that they are limited to two or three foods and some part of the body may be entirely un-nourished as a result.

If you are trying to reduce quickly and live on one food, undoubtedly milk is your best choice, he says, since it is the most nearly perfect food. But a more gradual reduction is more desirable.

Include in each day's fare the three vitamins. Vitamine A is found in fats, cream, butter, oil, fish, and green leaves such as spinach, lettuce, etc. Vitamine B is present in whole grain products, cereals, carrots, potatoes and many other vegetables. Vitamine C is found in green vegetables and fresh fruits, particularly lemon juice, orange juice, onion, tomato and cabbage juices.

Adventures Of The Twins

WHAT HIGGLEDY-PIGGLEDYSAID

"The first thing to do," said Daddy Gander as he and the Twins rode along through the sky on his magic dust-pan, "is to go to the top of the highest mountain in the world. Then we can look down and see everything. It shouldn't be a mite of trouble for us to see the House That Jack Built."

"What's that? What's that?" asked a voice close by. "What did you say?"

It was the tin rooster on the barn that was speaking, much to their surprise. The rooster was speaking—not the barn!

"What did you say about the House That Jack Built? I heard you say something out of my tin ear."

Daddy Gander stopped his magic dust-pan then and there and told the tin rooster all about it.

"Stupid!" said the tin rooster whirling about to north, then to east, then to south, then to west in his excitement. "The right person to ask is my cousin 'The-Cock-That-Crowed-in-The-Morn. Go and ask him at once. He rules the barnyard below. He ought to know all about it. Because he woke the Priest-All-Shaven—and Shorn—" tered-and-Torn to the Maiden-All-For-eared-and-Torn to the Maiden-All-For-lorn," said Nancy.

"Of course—of course," crowed the tin rooster turning south, then east and then north again. "I see you know all about it. If the Rooster-That-Crowed-in-the-Morn can tell you something about Mr. and Mrs. Tattered-and-Torn, the chances are that the mystery will be solved. Why shouldn't a newly-married couple like a nice new house like the one that Jack Built? Especially as they are so poor!"

"Common sense," said Daddy Gander, soundly. "And good advice! Thank you, Tin Rooster, Giddap!" he said to his magic dust-pan.

The magic dust-pan left the barn- and floated down to the barn- yard.

"Where is the Cock-That-Crowed-in-the-Morn?" asked Daddy Gander of all the chickens and ducks and turkeys and geese. "We have something very special to ask."

"He's gone!" cried Higgledy Piggledy. "He and the Cow-With-the-Tattered-Horn are both gone. And the Dog-That-Worried-the-Cat is gone and the cat, too, and if you ask me I might say that even the rat is gone also."

"What rat?" said Nick. "The Rat-That-Ate-the-Malt-That-Lay-in-the-House-That-Jack-Built," said Higgledy Piggledy.

"Well, well, well," said Daddy Gander. "It's all as clear as P. Q. R. The Man and the Maid got married. And they have set up housekeeping in the House-That-Jack-Built and

Combination Popular

The popular combination for dress and matching coat is responsible for some of the most carefully thought out costumes. Here is a gown of black wool trimmed with heavy stitching in white silk, coupled with a coat of the same material that is lined with heavy white crepe de chine trimmed with stitching of heavy black silk. Nearly all coat linings this season are trimmed in some unique way.

taken part of the barnyard with them."

"Mind you, I'm not just saying so," said Higgledy Piggledy. "I'm just guessing so. But it looks like common sense to me."

"We'll go to the highest mountain," said Daddy Gander again. "Then we can get a view of the world and see where the lost house is. Come on, children!"

And Daddy Gander and the Twins hoped on the magic dust-pan and flew away.

Stately Steps Return In New Fall Dances

Earmarks of the more stately and modest dance of yesteryear are to return.

These earmarks are naturalness, gliding grace, restraint and sobriety—all of which, according to American dancing instructors, are lacking in
